Claims 1-6 of this application conflict with the claims of Application No. 10/637283, 10638721, and 11/035590. 37 CFR 1.78(b) provides that when two or more applications filed by the same applicant contain conflicting claims, elimination of such claims from all but one application may be required in the absence of good and sufficient reason for their retention during pendency in more than one application. Applicant is required to either cancel the conflicting claims from all but one application or maintain a clear line of demarcation between the applications. See MPEP § 822.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Simon et al in view of Calderas et al (US Patent No. 6294214).

Simon et al disclose the combination of acesulfame K and high fructose corn syrup (HFCS), see entire document, especially Figure 11.

The claims differ as to the specific HFCS and the amounts.

Calderas et al disclose the conventional use of HFCS-42, HFCE-55, and HFCS-90 in combination with artificial or noncaloric sweeteners such as acesulfame (see entire patent, especially column 8, lines 42-65).

It is further noted that the claimed amounts, in the absence of a showing to the contrary, are deemed a matter of choice and at most optimization. It is conventional in the art to manipulate sweetener blends to obtain desired results.

Art Unit: 1761

It would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art, at the time the invention was made, to use the specifically claimed HFCS in that of Simon et al because the use and manipulation of HFCS in the sweetener art is conventional.
